As an accomplished individual with multiple rock star roles on the company, as well as self-driven entrepreneur.   I have the perspective either on the managing side and operation side.   Also, I have outstanding interpersonal skills with an emphasis of building and maintaining professional relationship with all my clients, colleagues and friends. I am confident that I possess the skills of resource management and problem solving.

I've successfully experienced various essential real-world training, being an entrepreneur, project manager, co-founder of a start-up, guiding a non-profit organization and a web developer for.   Currently, I'm working with Big Bear Cottage, a newly grown start-up company base in New York, as a project developer engineer. My responsibility is to remotely collaborate with UX/UI team, participate on implementing application back-end and front-end, and also present new creative ideas, and ensure the project reaches its milestone.

I believed that my record indicates my ability as a leadership and diversification, I am an exceptionally influential communicator, with keen eye on details.   Moreover I steadily maintain excellent work quantity while remain consistent with company objectives and goals.

As I discover the challenge or new opportunity to grow and expand my potential, I would embrace the chance and always give it a go.   I found out about the position listing, and would like to take a part in this contest.   I look forward regarding this opportunity should my profile considered a suitable candidate for this role, and hope that we have a chance to talk in greater details.
